Oxford House opening in Jacksonville

House will be one of 24 in the Trillium Health Resources region

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. – Oxford House and Trillium have opened a new residence in Jacksonville to serve eight men. Oxford Houses are a clean and sober housing option for individuals in recovery. With an average of eight beds per house, there are more than 1,600 Oxford House beds in North Carolina. Individuals typically enter an Oxford House after completing a drug and alcohol treatment program and must remain sober in order to remain as residents.

Following an application and approval process, individuals living in a house are expected to participate in a recovery program in the community during their residence. Residents must also follow basic house rules including contributions to household expenses and electing officers.

Oxford House's initiative and contract with Trillium, 2020 Vision for Recovery, opened more than 20 new sites with approximately 100 beds to the Trillium 28-county coverage area over five years ending in June 2020. The contract included resource development to support residents of the Oxford Houses. This was accomplished through relationships and memorandums of agreement with community partners such as community colleges, vocational rehabilitation, court systems, and the NC Division of Employment Security. In July 2020, a new contract was signed to develop four new sites and 32 beds per year throughout Trillium's catchment area.
